DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-3,12-15,16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Tokuhashi (U.S. patent No. 6,151,061).

As per claims 1,12,15 Tokuhashi shows a wearable display apparatus worn near left and right eyes of a user and to display images to be recognized through the left and right eyes (In fig.8 element 31), comprising: a main control unit (In fig.5 elements 11 and 12 and in col.11 lines 7-17) outputting view display position adjustment information corresponding to inputted interpupillary distance setting information (In fig.5 element 14 and In col.11 lines 15-24) indicative of an interpupillary distance between the left and right eyes; and display units(In fig.5 elements 1L, 1R) respectively display-processing image information inputted to an area within a display region corresponding to the view display position adjustment information, the display region being smaller than an entire view display area of the display units.

As per claims 2,13 Tokuhashi shows further comprising: a key input unit producing the interpupillary distance setting information in correspondence with a manipulation by the user (In fig.7 and In col.12 lines 7-10).

As per claims 3,14,16 Tokuhashi disclose a sensor mounted on a main body, detecting the interpupillary distance of the user, and outputting the interpupillary distance setting information to the main control unit (In col.5 lines 1-67).

Allowable Subject Matter

3. Claims 4-11,17 objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The prior art fails to teach or suggest, wherein the display units comprise: a first display unit having a first display device mounted on a main body to display an image to the left eye of the user, and a second display unit having a second display device mounted on the main body to display an image to the right eye of the user, said first and second display device each comprising: a matrix display unit displaying pixel information by selective driving of row electrodes and column electrodes, the row electrodes being arranged along a horizontal direction, and the column electrodes being arranged along a direction crossed at an angle with respect to the horizontal direction; and a display control unit selectively driving the row electrodes and the column electrodes to display the image at a view display position corresponding to the view display position adjustment information as claimed in claim 4.

The prior art fails to teach or suggest the interpupillary distance setting information for the user is set without movements of an optic system as claimed in claim 17.

Response to Arguments

4. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 1-17 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
